

CONFERENCE PROCEEDINGS

iNELTAL CONFERENCE 2020

November 14-15th, 2020

Organized by the Department of English, Faculty of Letters
Universitas Negeri Malang

With this Year's Theme:
Literacy in English Language: Learning Beyond Boundaries

FOREWORD

It was with great pleasure that this year, despite the challenging circumstances, we had the opportunity to host iNELTAL (International English Language Teachers and Lecturers Conference), an annual event organized by the Department of English, Faculty of Letters, Universitas Negeri Malang.

This year's theme, "Literacy in English Language: Learning Beyond Boundaries", was an invitation to discuss and share ideas related to various aspects of literacy in ELT. iNELTAL2020 proudly presented four keynote speakers: Prof Ali Saukah from Universitas Negeri Malang, Assoc. Prof Joan Kang Shin from George Mason University, USA, Assoc. Prof. Supakorn Phoocharoensil from Language Institute Thammasat University, Thailand, and Assoc. Prof. Carolyn McKinney from University of Cape Town, South Africa.

iNELTAL has been quite familiar among ELT educators as a conference with a friendly atmosphere, where English teachers and lecturers share their insights, knowledge and best practices. However, with the world facing a difficult time these days, things are no longer the same. iNELTAL 2020 is a special conference because for the first time, it is conducted online due to the Covid-19 pandemic.

A selection of papers from the conference is available in this volume. It was impossible to capture the content and enthusiasm at the conference, which was attended by more than 200 participants from many different parts of Indonesia and some countries in Asia.

We would like to express our deepest gratitude to the Faculty of Letters Universitas Negeri Malang for the continued support for this annual event. Our appreciation also goes to the conference committee members for their relentless effort to ensure the smooth organization of this conference, including in the preparation of this proceeding.